3.2 By Email

You may contact the Bet365 customer service staff by emailing a personal email account. If you prefer to communicate with someone directly, you may email [email protected]. It will be sent to the English-language support staff. To send emails in a foreign language, it is advisable to start by clicking on "help" and then clicking on "contact us". Whenever you have a Bet365 account's language set to a different language, their system will automatically recognize this and send you an email with the appropriate email address. On average, a response to your email should be received within 48 hours.

Often, it is much more rapid than this. When you submit your email, you must provide detailed facts about your problem for the support staff to undertake an exhaustive investigation. They will then email you a detailed response, including the solution to your issue.

To contact the support staff, you may go straight to the website at any time of day or night. We have discovered that contacting the Bet365 customer service staff through live chat is the most effective method. To use the live chat service
