It is not illegal to place bets if you're traveling, and your permanent residence is in a state like California where sports betting is illegal. As long as you are physically located in a state where sports betting is legal, you can place bets. This is because the law is based on your physical location at the time of the bet, not your permanent residence.

Virginia has recently passed legislation to allow online sports betting. This is a significant step towards legalizing the industry in the state. The law will allow residents to place bets on various sports events through licensed operators.

The legislation also includes provisions for responsible gambling and consumer protection. This includes measures to prevent underage gambling and to provide resources for individuals who may have gambling problems.

It is important to note that sports betting is still illegal in many states. Therefore, it is essential to check the laws of your state before placing any bets.
