Surely people who take poker seriously will find their way themselves to Unibet in one way or another even without people posting how soft the site is. As Unibet is still a growing site its imo more important to let the player pool grow with whoever wants to play on it and this will result in more active games, Unibet Poker getting bigger (as they are still) Tj T* BT /F

we recruit players through publicity and so on. And let's be honest, it's not like every ex HUD reg is now suddenly going to crush stakes on Unibet where they can't play with any extra software. No idea why people are always so concerned about bots on smaller sites or on sites where you can play anonymously. Sure there is potential but on which site isn't there a potential for bots nowadays? One almost won the TCOOP 08 on Stars... You are afraid of moving to another poker site in case you MIGHT get scammed by bots, while you probably are getting scammed by bots on a daily/weekly basis on a site like PS. And I don't blame PS for all of this as it's the way it is now in the time we live in with all the technology available. And Unibet has changed things in the past on their software to prevent bots/aiding software to work on their platform and I'm sure they will keep doing this in the future. And to answer the thread question, yes it's definitely worth switching over if you want to play microstakes.
